

Introducing UExcelTM

a new credit-by-examination program developed by Excelsior College, a world leader in distance education, and Pearson, the market leader in education publishing and services. UExcelTM can help you earn college or university credit by taking computer-based examinations in individual subject areas, delivered at more than 1,000 Pearson VUE test centers across the globe.

UExcelTM examinations are ideal for independent learners, international students who would like to attend a university in the United States, or anyone who would like to accelerate the completion of their degree by receiving credit for what they already know.

Prove you are prepared. Market yourself to institutions by demonstrating your ability to master university-level coursework.

Save time. Bypass entry-level college courses and prerequisites so you can graduate sooner.

Save money. Take UExcelTM exams for college credit and fulfill graduation requirements while saving thousands on tuition.

To prepare for the launch of this new program, UExcelTM is offering qualified students the opportunity to take a FREE beta exam in four different subject areas: Calculus, Physics, Political Science and Psychology. Pass the exam, and we'll send a transfer credit transcript to the college or university of your choice.

Who: Students who have taken classes in the exam subject areas or those with equivalent knowledge of the exam subject.

What: FREE college or university credit for taking and passing a new credit-by-examination test.

When: The beta period will end January 31, 2009.

Where: The tests will be delivered at more than 1,000 Pearson VUE test centers around the world.
